

A few days later when Hou Yi went out hunting, his apprentice, Pang Meng, snuck to steal the elixir.

Pang Meng tried to take the elixir from Chang'e. To protect the elixir, she drank it herself.

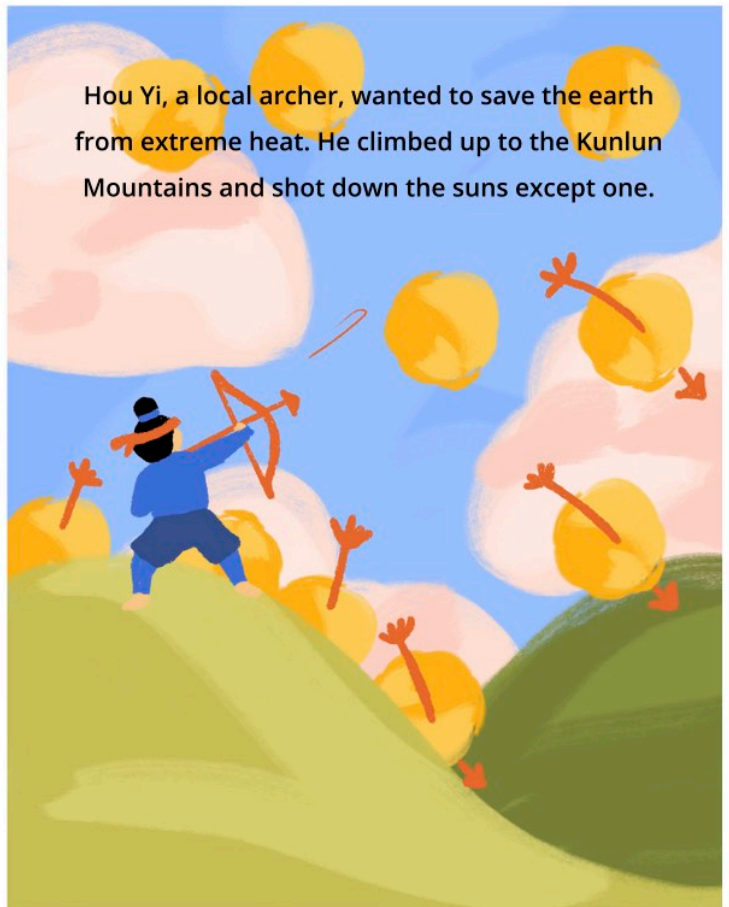

Chang'e began to float up to the sky and because of her love for Hou Yi, she stayed immortal on the moon with the Jade Rabbit. This way she could be close to earth and see her husband every day.

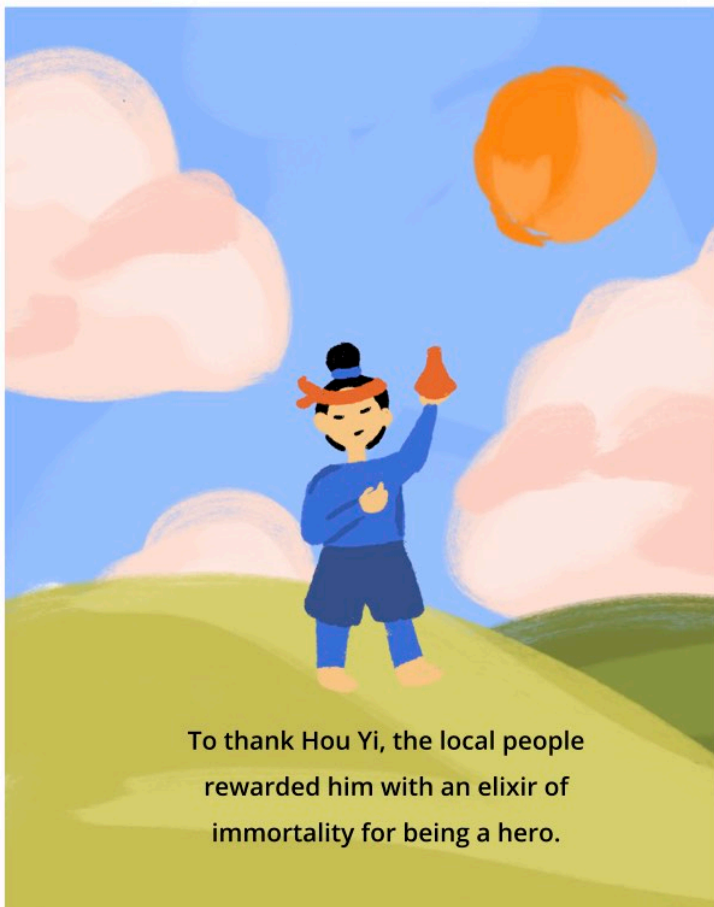

Every night, Hou Yi misses his wife and looks at the moon in his back garden with a table of his wife's favorite snacks.

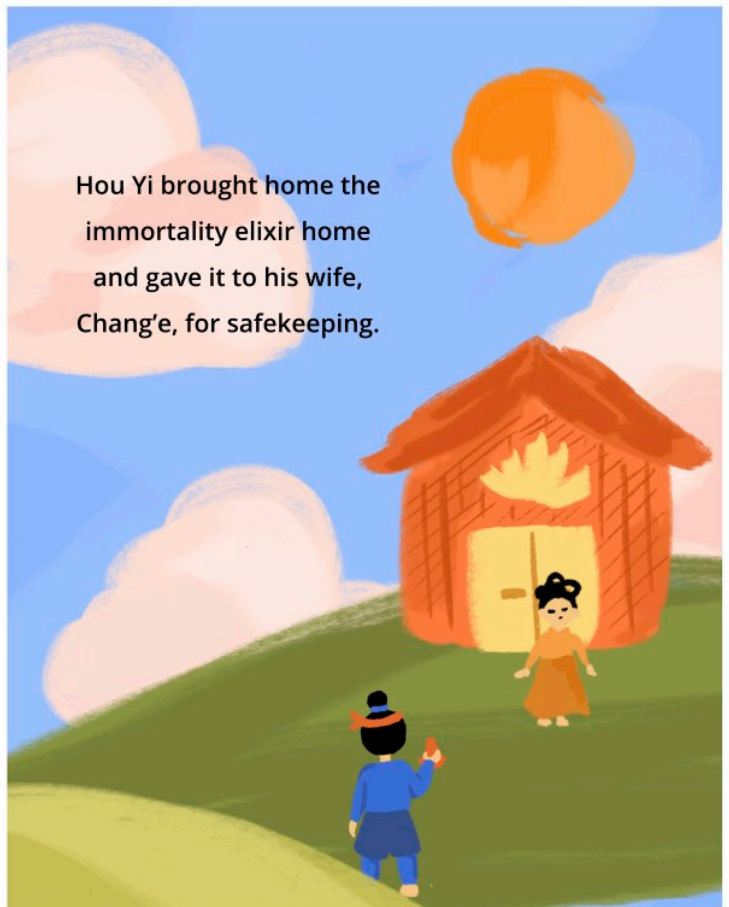

Long ago, there were 10 suns in the sky. The heat dried crops and caused disaster on earth.

Hou Yi, a local archer, wanted to save the earth from extreme heat. He climbed up to the Kunlun Mountains and shot down the suns except one.

To thank Hou Yi, the local people rewarded him with an elixir of immortality for being a hero.

Hou Yi brought home the immortality elixir home and gave it to his wife, Change'e, for safekeeping.